Dear Dr. Vatansever,

DOI: 10.1016/j.bmc.2020.115808

Article reference: BMC_115808

Title: An Optimal "Click" Formulation Strategy for Antibody-Drug Conjugate Synthesis

Thank you for your email to include your above mentioned article (images and text) in your thesis/PhD dissertation.

From checking, I can confirm that that authors can use their articles, in full or in part, for a wide range of scholarly, non-commercial purposes one of which is inclusion in a thesis or dissertation. See the following link for further information on this

<https://www.elsevier.com/about/our-business/policies/copyright/personal-use>

As you will be able to see from the above link, our policy is to allow authors to use their work in their thesis or dissertation (provided that this is not to be published commercially). Therefore, I can confirm that you can make it publicly available on your university web site/repository for non- commercial use.

If you require further clarification please contact our Permissions Helpdesk Team via the below link who will be able to help.

<https://service.elsevier.com/app/contact/supporthub/permissions-helpdesk>

You may also fill out the form at <https://www.elsevier.com/authors/permission-request-form> to submit your permission request via our online web.

Should you have any other questions or require further assistance, please feel free to let me know. I am happy to help.

Kind regards,

Jasper Jules Mabilangan

I am a PhD student at Texas A&M University, Department of Chemistry.

I would like to include images and text directly copied from our published article (in Bioorganic & Medicinal Chemistry) 'An optimal "Click" formulation strategy for antibody-drug conjugate synthesis' in my PhD dissertation.

Do you allow me to do it?

Thanks,

Erol Vatansever
